Introduction to the Association of Residential Communities (ARC)

The Association of Residential Communities (ARC) was established in 2008 to proactively support the volunteers/members of Homeowners Associations (HOAs) and Bodies Corporate, and their management teams in the achievement of their vision which is to establish, maintain and enhance the value of the properties as well as the lifestyles of their residents.

ARC's support services are aimed at all organised residential communities such as golf, lifestyle, wildlife, eco, equestrian, marina, retirement villages, leisure estates and cluster developments. ARC is a unique organisation which goes way beyond the traditional 'association' that is typically just a clearing house of information and a member listing, to one that engages with members on a practical level and offers a wide range of support services, dynamic networking opportunities, access to best practices and provision of policies, procedures, tools and templates for the effective management and leadership of the communities they serve.

Research shows that there are over 3000 registered Homeowners Associations and over 56000 Sectional Title Schemes containing around 2 million properties in South Africa. Each of these is represented by a Homeowners Association (HOA) or Body Corporate, consisting of elected volunteers who are members of the HOA. It is also the responsibility of the HOA to put in place a management team to manage the estate/community. ARC believes that since 80% of HOAs share similar issues and challenges there is a great opportunity for increasing efficiencies through sharing information and collective networking.

Directors and trustees are normally elected because of their passion, commitment and willingness to serve as volunteers and not necessarily because of their expertise in residential estate affairs. These directors and trustees are seldom fully aware of best practice and experiences outside of their community. This inevitably affects the performance and effectiveness of these office bearers who have a responsibility to fulfil not only their legal obligations, but also to meet their member's aspirations and objectives. ARC exists to provide the support required to provide good governance and effective management.

ARC is also the driving force for common interest community research and development and is committed to identifying trends in residential community living as well as to research and identify best practices. We aim to serve as the catalyst for positive change in the community association industry by making information available to our members.

ARC strives to adapt to change and we continually revisit our priorities, services and structure. We are committed not only to benchmarking SA best practice but also to benchmarking internationally. As ONE organisation, we strive to meet the needs of our members and the industry.

The Residential Community Industry

Industry research has shown that in South Africa:

- There are over 3 000 Homeowners Associations (HOAs)
- There are over 56 000 Sectional Title Schemes
- There are over 1.9 million homes in residential communities
- Over 5 million people currently reside in residential communities
- Organised communities take up around 9% of developed land
- Property value in residential communities makes up 27% of total residential property
- The industry has in excess of R 800 billion assets under management

We at Blair Atholl are extremely proud to be associated with ARC, and firmly believe that community associated living as a whole will benefit greatly from an organisation such as ARC. Furthermore, ARC's commitment to the professional development of Estate Management is vitally important to the industry, as it will ensure effective leadership and good governance." Mark Williams – CEO, Blair Atholl

Industry Partners

ARC's goal is to drive unification and representation of all Homeowners Associations and Bodies Corporate, as well as drive professionalism and best practice for all residential communities throughout South Africa. Through our services to members, project management, consulting services, professional memberships and with the partnerships we develop with our strategic business partners, ARC strives to create harmonious, safe, well maintained and financially sound communities that provide them with a quality of life that enhances their well-being and financial investment. Through the provision of strategic support and optimisation of estate leadership, ARC's mission is to enhance the lifestyle and property value of homeowners in organised residential communities.

ARC has established the following bodies in order to assist us in achieving our mission and objectives:

- The Residential Community Council (RCC), is a voluntary body. The Council is governed by a ratified constitution and will function through its network of regional working structures and a national decision-making forum. It has a set of defined objectives, functions and powers, aimed at establishing an effective consultative and representative industry body with the resources and mandate to act on the industry's behalf. The RCC will facilitate the process of industry consolidation and self-regulation in the ultimate interests of the individual HOA member.

- The Community Associations Institute of South Africa (CAISA), who provide training and development that culminates in qualifications and professional designations for community managers, service providers and directors who form part of the current membership. This is done through the Professional Management Development Programme (PMDP) and includes the Certified Manager of Community Associations (CMCA), Association Management Specialist (AMS) and Professional Community Association Manager (PCAM) qualifications, along with other designations.

ARC is represented on the following bodies:

- The World Congress of Community Association Management (TWCCAM), who brings an international focus to the profession of managing community associations, as well as establishing international standards of management excellence and developing international education criteria. Ultimately, TWCCAM provides a voice to universal ethical management values and is made up of members from the USA, Dubai, Australia and South Africa
- The International Foundation of Community Management Research (IRF) who conduct community management research across the globe and distribute the outcomes of this research to all members in each participating country.
